The Ports of Rome and Lazio, the Italian “Community” boosting the training of logistics operators of the future

At a difficult and uncertain time such as the one linked to the pandemic crisis due to Covid-19, projects such as "Youth Employment in the Ports of the Mediterranean" are of fundamental importance, especially in view of the messages, at the European level, that are becoming the basis for the future and that are at the heart of the Italian National Recovery and Resilience Plan.

The world of employment has always seemed daunting to young people. Having completed either higher education or specialised training programmes, young people frequently lacked the technical know-how that was expected of them from the get-go. In the following article, José del Moral from the Barcelona Talent Logistics company, talks about the evolving approaches of companies seeking new employees.
