Driving Innovation

Escola Europea and Barcelona Port Foundation join forces

The TECHLOG Project, Port Virtual Lab and the Green Deal. All part of the Escola's drive towards innovation.

At the Escola Europea - Intermodal Transport we are slowly approaching the end of a very busy period. With the Europea project YEP MED nearing its final days, the Escola's signature course bookings gaining full steam ahead, the SIL conference at which not one, but two of our big projects were featured alongside our signature training offers, and more, we have had very short periods of respite. This is good news for us - a testament to the influence that we hold throughout the Mediterranean port community. But this quarter I wanted to share with you - our alumni community - a particularly special partnership that we have forged; one with the Port of Barcelona's Innovation Foundation.

#BlueInnovation

AI in maritime. What's the hype?

In an era where artificial intelligence (AI) has taken the world by storm, its influence is slowly infiltrating all aspects of our society. From healthcare to finance, AI is revolutionising industries.

The maritime sector is no exception.

Learning together

In March we introduced the new initiative that was born out the need to bring port professions closer to the realities of our communities and our sector - The Barcelona Ports Training and Employment Group.

This month, we wanted to check in with how the group was doing, with a specific focus on step two of our journey - Learning Together (or Aprenem Junts).

#DidYouKnow

Back to Basics: Blue vs. Green Hydrogen

From biofuels, to liquified natural gas, to electric batteries – the transport sector is currently exploring a variety of solutions that can be put in place to make transport cleaner whilst maintaining its efficiency. One such alternative fuel source is hydrogen.

Reflections from the Red Sea

On the first Tuesday of May, 2023, I woke up with a feeling of anticipation. Looking out of the window of my hotel room, with the soon-to-be-hot sun only peeking out from the horizon across the desert landscape, I could sense the excitement of the two days to come.
