Dear friend of the Escola,

Escola, in collaboration with the MEDports Association, is thrilled to share an important development in our journey toward a unified Mediterranean. Our partnership has enabled Jordan, Portugal, and Mauritania to join our expanding alliance, marking significant progress towards our shared vision of cultural and social advancement. Yet, our aspirations extend further, with the hope of including Libya to fully realize a cohesive Mediterranean community.

This initiative reflects our commitment to overcoming the barriers of political and religious differences through education, underscoring the belief that knowledge paves the way for sustainable development. Echoing the historic vision of a "Mediterranean Republic," we are dedicated to enhancing the free flow of wisdom across the region, promoting English as a lingua franca, and supporting democratic reforms across all nations.

As we move forward, the support and involvement of our esteemed alumni network are invaluable. Your engagement is crucial as we strive to transform our ambitious vision into reality, creating a Mediterranean that stands as a beacon of culture, progress, and unity.

With warmest regards,

Eduard Rodés

The challenges of digitalization and its impact on training activities in transport and logistics

For many years now, companies and all kind of organisations have improved their information circuits by mechanising, or computerising, etc.

Progress, so far, has been implanted inside the organisations, facilitating the transfer of information between different departments. Commercial departments, operations (transport-warehouse, etc.), and administration, among others are but some examples. In this aspect, applications have evolved ...
